Mission statement

To provide residents, city government and educational and nonprofit organizations of Concord, New Hampshire, and such surrounding towns that may elect to participate, with the opportunity, facilities and access to cable television for the purpose of producing and cablecasting public interest, cultural, education and government programs over the local cable television channels.

From the Board Chair

CCTV covers many aspects of Concord's youth and diverse culture.

Athletes of all ages are seen year-round starting in Summer with Little League and softball championships, Quarry Dog baseball and then seasonal high school sports. Concord is primarily a hockey town, thanks in a big part to Concord Youth Hockey celebrating its 50th birthday in 2007. Back in the late 1800's, Canadian ice hockey came to St. Paul's School and Concord. French Canadians settled in the area bringing their language and culture along with generations of hockey heroes.

Sports continue to provide the opportunity for young athletes of all backgrounds to play as teammates and excel. Concord athletes together have shared many competitions and championship seasons, but most importantly formed lifelong friendships, a cornerstone of Concord's community spirit.

Concord's 21st Century diversity is on its soccer fields, where players of international heritage display their talents. In 2005, Concord High's boys soccer team, with this diverse mix, won its first ever championship, and CCTV was there to record and preserve those memories.

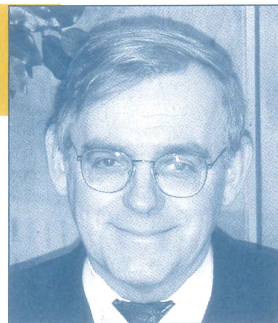

City schools with student theater, music and arts performances are seen on CCTV. With assistance from principals and teachers, Concord students videotape these events for replay on the educational access channel. You can watch your children, grandchildren, or the neighborhood kids as they perform adding to Concord's cultural life. These student videographers and producers will become the CCTV of tomorrow, with maybe one of them becoming the next Ken Burns. All this is seen on the Education Channel 6.

Finally, on March 26, 2006, the arts reigned supreme with CCTV's Second Annual Arts Telefest. Numerous performances and presentations from Concord's arts community were showcased. Writers, musicians, artists, and performers alike paraded their talents and works during a twelve-hour broadcast marathon. Youth, and adults together sang, danced and performed in a cavalcade of stars in a continuous video quilt of Concord's arts and cultural community.

As always, CCTV broadcasts will reflect Concord's culture, youth and diversity with its sports and arts performance.

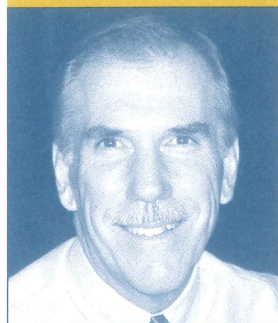

Stay tuned and join us.

From the Executive Director

As programming and outreach continued to expand in 2005-06, CCTV's efforts did indeed result in a 'reflection of Concord's youth, culture and diversity'.

The Education Channel 6 again saw an increase in programming displaying the many projects and talents of our students. The Government Channel 17 showed its importance to all citizens in times of emergency with the flooding early in the year and in times of concern with the Avian flu. The Public Access Channel 22 branched out significantly to include our seniors, our disabled and all of our nonprofits.

Outreach plays an important part in CCTV's operations and as the organization continues to make the community aware of its role and function, so too will this result in meaningful programs for all three channels. New areas that were presented included our business community; our recreation facilities; our private schools; our Continuing Education programs, and, our churches and religious organizations.

CCTV is now on the verge of establishing long-term goals and commitments to the city. With a new contract and a new Executive Director in place, CCTV can propel itself into the next phase of its mission. Important advancements in its technology and facility will mean equal advancements in what CCTV offers to the community.

Local access television is a great tool for any city or town to get its message out, to promote its many opportunities, and to feature its people, thoughts and talents. CCTV strives to do everything it can to show residents and organizations how to use and benefit from this tool. We encourage the community to learn about us and allow us to enhance and enrich your lives.

 Reflecting a vibrant community through its involvement in city activities and events

Market Day activities can be seen on CCTV helping Main Street Concord to build a better community.

CCTV volunteers and staff provide technical assistance each year to the Concord Boys and Girls Club in televising their annual auction.

"Informed citizens are empowered. CCTV plays a critical role keeping the community engaged in what makes Concord tick."

Timothy G. Sink, President
Greater Concord Chamber of Commerce

A new tradition was born as Dick Patten, Producer of Around Town, introduced a new holiday program, Around Town with Santa.

Eileen Keim produced Hometown Security, a program focusing on the city's emergency preparedness.

"Around Town celebrated its 5th anniversary in 2006 with a variety of shows ranging from a visit from Santa to visiting with Governor John and First Lady Dr. Susan Lynch, and seeing what's happening with many of our nonprofit organizations. We also chatted with new businesses in town helping to spread the word to our viewers. Around Town continued to interview political candidates for office this year. We look forward in 2007 to continue bringing new and interesting shows to our viewers."

 Reflecting a vibrant community through volunteers

Tune into CCTV's Public Access Channel 22 at any given time and you will undoubtedly recognize many familiar faces. These are the faces of Concord residents who share their ideas and varied interests on their own television show. And in reading the credits at the end of a program, you might also recognize other familiar names. Perhaps the name of a friend, neighbor or acquaintance, each volunteering behind the scenes, in running a camera, sound, directing, etc. Together, they represent the 260 individuals who have contributed nearly 4,000 hours in programming during the past year.

A Reflection Of Our Youth

It was a busy year in programming on the station's Education Channel 6. CCTV recognized Dr. Roger Brooks, Principal of Beaver Meadow School, for his outstanding contributions in producing more than 80 programs reflecting the many accomplishments of the school's students and teachers. Dr. Brooks, who is seen on right in photo with Governor Lynch and John Hatab, also received the Governor's Arts in Education Award in 2006.

A REFLECTION OF OUR GOVERNMENT

Concord residents kept informed of city activities as they tuned in to City Council, Planning and Zoning meetings throughout the year. In addition, the following programs highlighted city departments, new developments, community history, election candidates, and important health and welfare issues.

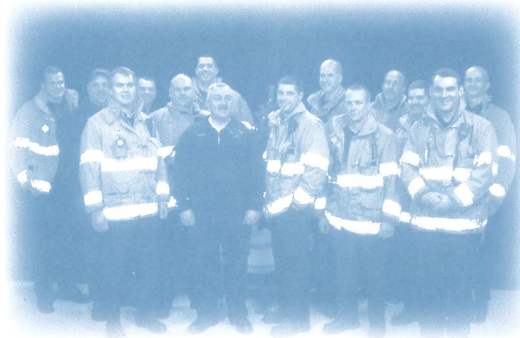

CCTV collaborated with the city in presenting important information to residents at several flood briefings.

"As the City of Concord Emergency Management Coordinator during the Spring 2006 floods, I found CCTV's willingness to work with public safety officials in getting out safety messages to be incredibly valuable. We conducted several live briefings intended to provide situational awareness to citizens regarding evacuation areas, street closures, and other important information. We received much positive feedback from citizens because of these briefings. Now as the State Director for Homeland Security and Emergency Management, I hope to see all of our state's community stations provide similar services during times of natural and human caused disasters."
